

The lion was forever fighting the bull to prove his strength. One day the lion challenged the bull and his friends to a fighting contest to decide who is the strongest.

The all three bulls accepted the challenge provided that they form a single team against the lion. The lion felt scared of the three-bull union against him.

The lion thought out a plan to win the contest and separate the members of the union in order to take them each apart.

So, he went to the first bull and whispered in his ear, “The black bull says he is the strongest of all the three bulls, that without him you will all be beaten.”

Then he went to the second bull and said, “the red bull says you are the weakest bull of the group, that you are not fit for the contest.”

Finally, he went to the third bull and said, “the other two say you are a coward, that you will seek their protection during the contest.”

The three bulls became excited and angry, and each wanted to prove he is the strongest in the group. So, the first bull attacked the second, and the third bull attacked both of them.

It was a raging battle that led to the death of the three bulls. The lion was happy for the success of his scheme, which relied on his cleverness. He said, "it's true... union is strength...without union defeat is inevitable."
